Dedication

stoic acceptance —
 feet stomp
 voices yell 8-2, 9-2, 10-2
 class halt
 with time
     each thud, jolt
         slowly wearing down
         resistance cracks appearing ping-pong balls disappearing basketballs haphazardly bouncing off loose floor boards
 you stood
     and yet still you stand bearing the brunts
         of sarcastic jokes,
         but proudly.
 you have served well —
         cows and hay once
                 long ago,
     a gym for yates academy with an indoor pool, a library and dining hall
         for lms,
     presently as a gym
         for lmhs.
 in appreciation for bearing the strain of long, hard years of service,
 we remember you in this 1973 yearbook.

*There was a quietness, then.
Not
the straining quiet
of bored inactivity*

*but the still quiet
of calm
and simplicity.*

*We were content with being — watching
the stream flow,
feeling a laugh.*

*We walked down a wooded path
you and I,
watching
what the clouds
did to the sun*

Sometimes

we just listened and others listened back.

We were an earthy people, then our hands caressed the earth and it responded with green.

*Weather-worn boards and warped floors
echo those times now.
rust and corrosion*

*Hard, cool pavement
covers our path,
buildings back-to-back
on our earth.
Those days are good and old, now.
Gazing
sorrowfully
at rusted nails*

*and wondering if small nothings
may have meant something,
will not resurrect
has-been moments.*

Besides, today the sun still shines — shines on you and me, you and me who must learn to cope with changing seasons, who strain to assemble our thoughts amidst rollicking laughter and endless rushing.

*So when the day
is over and
the rapid pace
sends mind-aches
and burning eyes.*

*When
gut-level
hassles
run us
ragged,*

*and timeless action
begins to weave a net
of dreams
and illusions
in which we feel caught*

*We understand
we cannot rely on yesterday's quiet.*

*But
in the disquiet
of today*

We must discover quiet —

*Two hands
reaching out
touching,
thinking
a thought*

*Sharing
a songbook*

*feeling the earth,
with God's sun
shining
on us.*

sometimes realization dawns in the most unusual ways.
perhaps we were sitting in physics class or eating buttered noodles, when we finally saw ourselves in the timelessness
of tomorrow.
during our moment here
we gave and received,
laughed,
and maybe cried a little.
we yearned to find purpose and fulfillment
but mostly we just wanted to be.
and in being, we observed Imh to be . . .

Senior Trip

a two day vacation
involving 166 students, four ctc buses, gusty
winds
and sunday-go-to-meeting clothes.
encountering
husband libbers
ornery elevators
our simplicity violated in the washington cathedral fbi headquarters — "don't you even want my fingerprints?"
grooving over the nat'l symphony orchestra
jfk center
franciscan monastery
smithsonian institute,
u.s. mint
capitol bewildering antics in the changing of the guards
a broadening of our world.
